

Wildwood: Fort - Two Springs Trails Loop from Wildflower Playfield

Highlights

- Enjoy the beauty and tranquility of Wildwood Canyon without the crowds or dusty parking
- Easy short loop along park walkways and pretty canyon trails
- Two Springs Trail is closed to mountain bikers and equestrians because of stairs
- Includes two tunnels that pass underneath Avenida de los Arboles
- The Fort Trail is included in the 2024 Conejo Open Space Challenge, highlighted green on the map below.

Description

The walking trails of Wildflower Playfields and Fort Wildwood Park (AKA Wildwood Neighborhood Park) are an easy stroll, possibly with lots of other people around. In contrast, on the pretty and tranquil trails in the canyons, you aren't likely to see many people, if any. This is a welcome change from the main part of the park that can be very crowded, especially on the weekend.

Start at the parking lot on Canna Street, then cross Canna to the paved trail that leads to Fort Wildwood Park on the other side of Arboles. Continue along the dirt trail down into Wildwood Canyon, then turn north onto Two Springs Trail just before you get to the vehicle bridge across the stream. You'll cross the stream on stepping stones before climbing out of the canyon to Moonridge Trail and back to Wildflower Playfields. Try hiking it in the opposite direction for a different experience!

(Two Springs Trail was formerly known as Indian Creek Trail.)
